1) Manage 3D effects as you would on any modern video editing software, including 3D particles, 3D motion blur, 3D depth of field, and 3D color grade. 2) Define a camera in 3D space and render an entire scene as a keyframe, then preview, playback, or export the final scene. 3) Apply custom lighting, render with reflections, and more to the 3D composited effect. 4) Create a 3D VFX shot from an image and apply a 3D color grade to produce a final composite. 5) Compose 3D images, and apply 3D warping, scale, rotation, and more to produce new and stunning looks. 6) Adjust the 3D effects while the video is being played back and composited in real-time. 7) Watch real-time previews of the 3D composited effect. 8) Export the finished effect to AVI, MPEG, or WMV format for use with the major 3D compositing applications. 9) Import 3D effects from Boris BLUE's resource-based network-editing system into Boris BLUE. 10) Apply 3D effects to existing videos with Boris BLUE's built-in video encoder. "Syncthing is an open-source software, developed by subtomat DESY, which provides synchronisation of files across multiple devices and computers. It is designed to provide end-to-end encryption and to be entirely peer-to-peer. Synchronisation is based on the file system and allows automatic detection of file system events like renaming, creation, deletion, moves, and copy, and cross-device push and pull." (from the Syncthing website) "Syncthing is a peer-to-peer application which operates by means of an in-memory filesystem that is optimized for high speed and high throughput operation. The design goal for the Syncthing server-side implementation is to keep the costs of administration, monitoring and maintenance low and to implement the server-side parts as closely as possible as the client-side counterpart. While the server side could be replaced by a CDN solution, this requires Syncthing to load data from the CDN for each synchronization. To keep the synchronization lightweight, Syncthing is designed to maintain a local in-memory database of all files and metadata." (from the Syncthing website) "Syncthing is a cross-

A key macro is a special type of keyframe applied to a clip. Its effects can be animated, and keyframed on any frame, within the first and last clips frame. Keymacro record and playback: Keymacro can be used to record your action as a keymacro from any frame of your project, and then rewind and playback. You can use the keymacro directly to play the clip or you can choose the frames that you want to use for keymacro. Keymacro color selector: Choose the color of your keymacro, and apply a color to your clip. You can choose from many colors and combine them to create your own color. Keymacro length: Define the length of the keymacro by sliding the value. You can choose between one or two actions (smooth or bounce). Time display: Time display allows you to see the elapsed time between the active frames. Show number of frames: You can adjust the number of frames you want to play and keyframe. Show keymacro position: You can show the position of the keymacro in the project. Show status: Show the status of the keymacro. Show attribute names: You can view the keymacro attributes and display the name. Play the clip: You can preview the clip and play it using any keymacro in your project. Edit the clip: You can modify the position of the keymacro and its duration using the global timeline. Directly Edit: You can directly edit the clip and edit any keymacro. Apply effects: You can add new effects using the keymacro clip. You can adjust effects parameters. Keymacro clip: You can select the clip, and add new keymacro to the project. You can select the frames that you want to use for the keymacro, and choose any clip in your project. Preview clips: You can preview clips without adding them to the project. Optionally you can add the keymacro to a specific clip in your project. Keymacro settings: You can modify the keymacro settings. You can change the clip name and place. You can set the transition and keyframes. Use other clips for keymacro: You can set the clip that will play when the keymacro is active. 1d6a3396d6
