Designed to be used as a macro recorder in Windows environments, this tool lets you record keyboard shortcuts and capture simple interactions with Windows. KEYMACRO supports most mainstream Windows applications such as browsers, e-mail clients, FTP clients, multimedia players, etc. It captures button presses, keystrokes, mouse movements and screen clicks and allows you to edit them at will. The application supports three different input sources: the mouse, keyboard and clipboard. By default, keymacro captures the mouse events, but you can specify which element you wish to capture from a dropdown list. The results can be exported to XML, Text, HTML and CSV formats. The saved items can be sent to the Clipboard, saved to disk or sent as an email. Moreover, keymacro supports Google Docs, Internet Explorer and Firefox. You can copy and paste results from your website to a Windows document and also use the app to set keyboard shortcuts for URLs and other hotkeys. You can also use keymacro to export recorded items to a clipboard so that you can use the results in other Windows applications. KEYMACRO

Review: During our testing we found that keymacro is a very useful tool that allows you to capture Windows actions and record them as a macro. Keymacro is a very light application that needs no installation and can be used with any Windows system. We really liked the functionalities, as it allows us to record mouse actions, shortcut commands, keys and clipboard contents. It supports lots of different Windows applications and allows us to use all their features while recording the keyboard shortcuts. There are a lot of different exporting formats that you can use, so you don't have to go through any data format conversion. On the downside, the program does not allow us to use the keyboard when it captures events, so we couldn't capture any shortcuts using it, such as multimedia keys, media keys and hotkeys. Overall, keymacro is a very useful tool that allows you to capture Windows actions and record them as a macro. PRO
