so im been trying to make a script that generates a pretty file that have some info from mysql database but the input im using is basically just the file path and i have that set up as follows: $file = $_GET['file']; $file1 = '.co'; $mp3/hans.enaleo.com'; $query = "SELECT file, $dbname2.name FROM $dbname2.file_links WHERE $dbname2.name LIKE ".$file."."; A: MYSQL has the SOUNDEX() function. If you need to get the Levenshtein Distance (an advanced soundex look-up function) see the Levenshtein Distance function here: If you can structure your database file access a bit better, you can use the LIKE statement with the SOUNDEX() function and you should get a better answer.
