Delayed encephalopathy after upper eyelid blepharoplasty. Two patients developed progressive decline in mental status 3 to 5 weeks after undergoing a blepharoplasty. Both patients had a previous history of hypertension. The first patient had impaired visual acuity and the second patient was found to have a cerebrovascular accident. One patient became comatose and the other was found to have had global clonic seizures. After excluding significant systemic problems, clinical evaluation and cerebral angiography were suggestive of progressive posterior fossa disease. Both patients made complete clinical recovery within a few days of treatment. Although uncommon, vascular complications of blepharoplasty are potentially devastating and vigilance for the early diagnosis of cerebrovascular events is necessary. Brian Youse Prof Brian Robert Youse FRSE (1932-2010) was an influential Scottish medical researcher and palliative medicine specialist. His most famous work was his book "Loving Care of the Dying".
