Sheriff: Local, state police identify man killed in shootout Mansfield - State Police and the Warren County Sheriff's Department identified the man killed in a shootout early Tuesday as Donald J. Lovick, 45, of Ludlow. State Police District Attorney Anthony D. Wells told a news conference that the shootout happened around 2:30 a.m. in front of 209 Appleton St., a two-story, single-family residence in Ludlow. Mr. Wells said that when Mr. Lovick was shot, he returned fire at two state troopers. One trooper was hit by return fire and the second trooper, who was not hit by return fire, drove to the nearby Brookside Health & Rehabilitation Center, where Mr. Lovick was taken. He was pronounced dead at the center. Sheriff James N. Robins said the two state troopers who were at the scene were not hurt in the shootout and were immediately taken to the Health Center. The troopers did not have any wounds, Mr. Robins said. Two other men were in the suspect vehicle and escaped on foot, Mr. Robins said. One was arrested in the Town of Shrewsbury after the shootout while the other has not been found, he said. A gun was also taken from the scene, he said. In a Facebook post on its website, Warren County Sheriff's Department posted a picture of a black sedan with a gun on the roof. Deputies were searching for anyone who may have seen the suspect in the area of Oxford and Northfield roads, a state police spokesman said. The state troopers involved in the shooting are members of the New Britain State Police Academy in Canton and work out of the Concord barracks, the spokesman said. They are part of Troop M, based in New Britain. The spokesman said the state police "will conduct a thorough investigation" into the shooting. Mr. Wells said that the incident is "a matter of active investigation" by the district attorney's office, the state police and the Warren County Sheriff's Department. He said they are working "to determine what, if anything, there was in that vehicle that led to 570a42141b
