His innovative and passionate project, which just started to take shape in 2014, was at once both a test of his own skills and a new adventure to create something original. Christophe first took part as an independent tester with a number of games from the market and found himself quite overwhelmed by the amount of free games available. Then he decided to make his own game in a genre that he had always been a fan of: Strategy. What is it about? The Blocks!: Julius Caesar a two-player real-time wargame where the Roman Empire or the Greek (Yup, we know it is not historically accurate!) player fights to determine the future of Rome. You will face the challenges of the Civil War (49-45 BC), led by Marc Antony (kind of a military version of Roy from Home Alone) and a god-like and yet, brilliant leader of the ancient world, Julius Caesar! The Roman player will be able to control 15 ancient and legendary legions and 3 cohorts, while the Greek player, who will have access to four Greek counterparts, can also use a number of different units. You will need to defend your fortresses and fight against your enemies in order to conquer and lay claim to the territories to win. The battle is tactical and it is even possible to take command of a commander's HQ! Your units, in all their glory, will be at your disposal in the game's online and offline tournaments. At the heart of the strategy lies the amazing battlefield map, which was designed to be a faithful reproduction of the places where the drama of the Civil War played out. This is the art of computer strategy at its best. The town map also offers many other maps

As a large tree falls in a forest, an antelope falls in a meadow and a clump of thorns falls on a gardener's head. God is a terrible gardener and punishes humanity for its sins in these ten scenarios. Humanity is then allowed to ask for forgiveness, but if humanity does not accept, God will punish them too, so humanity needs to hurry up and repent. With God is Enough comes to people who are skeptical of the existence of God and who are not open to the love of God. They come from all walks of life, Protestant Christians, Muslims, atheists, Catholics, agnostics, Sikhs, Buddhists, Hindus. They are convinced that God exists, but they do not believe in his existence and love. About the Game: In this spiritual book, God allows humanity to repent. As a reward for repentance, God gives humanity a tiny shard of his glory, to show that God's love and compassion cannot be destroyed, so long as humanity does not stray again. Humans are allowed to choose which god to pray to, but it must be the true god, because all gods except one are lesser gods. The one that is lesser is the god whom humanity believes in, because humans want to feel love and compassion. God gave humanity the temptation of the various gods to let humanity choose which god to pray to. The purpose of this spiritual book is to let humans know the true God and to let human know and feel his true love. The human mind cannot know God perfectly, so the knowledge in this spiritual book is not complete. It can only serve as a spiritual opening. In this spiritual book, the focus is more on the goodness and kindness of God, and to show how God is love. The true god who reigns in heaven is not here for humans, but because humans begged for forgiveness. The human notion of God can only be that God is the kind and generous god who provides for humans. Everyone hopes to understand and acknowledge God. However, in this spiritual book, God simply wants humans to acknowledge that only one god can exist for human, and that god is infinite love and kindness. God wants humanity to know that humans cannot make God, and that God has no choice but to love humanity. Humans should know that humans cannot know God, and that everything humans believe comes from humans. Humans will all believe what is written in this spiritual book, they just need to believe and experience it. *What's the c9d1549cdd
