.Catch Black Injustice This week, we were able to watch Naomi Schafer of Michigan East High School in Traverse City, Michigan as she won the NCAA national championship in 1500m for a new personal best and NCAA all-time record time of 4:10.99. She is the first girl in over a decade to achieve the feat. The race was especially rewarding because she beat her personal best set last year when she clocked 4:11.14. Here's what else we're reading: Ellen Read of the U.S. Youth National Team was able to qualify in the 800m final with a time of 2:00.29 to win a silver medal. This is her second medal as she won a gold in 2010, and it's the first U.S. medal in women's youth sub-4:00 in eight years. Alyssa Anderson finished in 10th place in the 55 meter hurdles with a time of 9.82 seconds. She was competing with a torn meniscus in her knee and so we can only hope that she heals just in time for the indoor season. In heptathlon, Joyce Hwang of Mississippi State University set an all-time high school record with 2,921 points. She finished second behind the all-time U.S. high school record holder Ashley Foy of Dallas, Texas. In distance, Tiffany Porter of Chicago state tied for fifth in the 800 with a time of 2:07.06. She was the first freshman to break 2:10 and was the second heptathlete to do so this year. So, to sum it up, it was a great weekend for track and field. Michigan produced the three medalists and has now had at least one individual or relay medal in a men's or women's event in every meet since 2009. That's pretty good for a team that didn't win a regular-season conference title until 2011.
