This game is all about being able to choose any of the 128 different locations from your city, or walk the neighbor's city and meet the reapers who walk the street. You can also meet the reapers when they travel by walking, car, busses, and trains. In each of the four different locations, there is a different kind of reaper, each reaper will have their own manners, as a result their stats will be different. Each location requires you to manage the reapers and give them a job. During a night, reapers will get to leave their job and go the next morning to run their jobs. Choose your reapers

CONTACT INFO: Roadtrip Escape: City of Ghosts is a fun, light-hearted game from Slovenian indie developer, Bobjan Stropnik. It's a location-based puzzle RPG that will hopefully inject a bit of adrenaline into your life as you traverse a vibrant city and its thriving underworld in search of your lost mother. I spoke to Bobjan about his debut title: Bozca: What is Roadtrip Escape? Bobjan: Roadtrip Escape is a puzzle style RPG that takes place in a spooky gothic town with 128 unique locations, called "Ghosts". It's an adventure game to explore all the locations and meet the goblins who live there. People in real life have to pick up the stuff they buy in shops. In our game, you have to help the goblins collect the stuff they buy in the shops. Bozca: What were you trying to do with Roadtrip Escape? Bobjan: With Roadtrip Escape, we wanted to create a game that "hugs", and is somehow a little bit "rekindling". We thought this would be kind of a good mix between Puzzle Quest and c9d1549cdd

What's new in SMASHING THE BATTLE:

Indian Countryside The Sierra Madre (Spanish: Montaña de Sierra Madre, Mountain of the Friend) is a mountain range in the Guadalupe Mountains of far western Texas, U.S. that separates the headwaters of the Colorado and Pecos River watersheds. The range's high ridges and deep valleys have concentrated their runoff into numerous perennial creeks and flowing and rain-fed rivers, which drain into the Rio Grande basin. As a result, the Sierra Madre has been separated from the Chihuahuan Desert, so that its westerly slopes are very well forested by deciduous trees, especially oak and sycamore. The range is also a paradise for the species of large mammals, as well as many venomous snakes, alligators, and other reptiles; that include jaguar, puma, mountain lion, rattlesnake, and copperhead. It is also home to a great diversity of bird species.

Flora and fauna Some 39 different types of trees and plants grow in the Sierra Madre. These include oak trees, yucca (yucca baccata, Yucca versifolia, Yucca arborea), paloverde, mesquite, cholla (Cerianthemum capitatum), mallow, cypress (juniperus communis), live oak (quercus virginiana), douglas fir, cedar elm (gleditschia triacanthos), ironwood, eucalyptus (eucalyptus sp.), tepary bean (pachycereus stamoschicus), prickly pear cactus (opuntia sp.), and others. Sierra Madre Mountain lion and jaguar, afro lion, are found in the Sierra Madre mountains.

Mountain lions sometimes are known to charge and hunt humans. They prey upon smaller animals, such as deer, javalines, and rabbits, as well as small livestock animals.

Skunks and armadillos are also consumed regularly by mountain lions. The jaguar's common prey is the Puma and bobcat. Several other mammals that live in the Sierra Madre include the white-tailed deer, mule deer, albino raccoon, golden-mantled ground squirrel, mountain cottontail, ocelot, and larger insectivorous mammals such as red-tailed hawks, white-tailed kites, white
