If you like extreme driving, physics simulation and vehicles, this simulator is for you! Pick your character and work together with your friends: using the crane, bulldozer or excavator you have to move all those heavy loads to the intended destination. Each load is built individually, and you have to take the weight limits and the hull handling into account! Can you move the loads from one place to another without breaking them? It is a test of everything: strength, timing, cooperation, and strategy! You can choose between 10 vehicles: bulldozer, wheel loader, excavator, earth movers, forklift, dumper, pruner, bucket wheel, wheel tractor and crane. Everything from multi-collision physics to coarse full-body collisions are there to test your driving skills. Use the crane to load and unload with maximum efficiency. The big eyes on the crane can pick up objects if you are quick and lucky, or they get blocked if they get in your way. With the bulldozer and the excavator you push and dig the ground. Use the wheel loader to move loads and dig areas for your friends. In all levels, 8 vehicles of different parts are available, with different weights and most commonly operated vehicles: in the challenges, 3 out of the 4 players are given vehicles to operate together, like in real operating teams. Check out the challenges: Push your driving skills and move up the ranks! It is a free game and ad-supported. The Little Crane is back! And it brought its friends to play in the dirt. Driving and operating heavy machinery is a blast! Test your operating skills in this simulator game with a diverse set of challenges. Use the crane to load an unload, the bulldozer to shape the terrain, and an excavator to dig up the terrain. Speaking of terrain: it is the real hero in this game! With never seen before dig-anywhere technology™ you can shape the world. Any changes to the world will persist between levels and game sessions, and there are no restrictions: cliffs, overhangs, caves, tunnels: it is all possible. The world size is near infinite: you can dig a hole, then drive for an hour in a random direction and backtrack by following your track impressions in the terrain. You will then find your dug hole as you left it: no short-cuts: real terrain simulation! The game features 8

Coasting is risky, but rewarding. There is a defined progress and a clear goal, but eventually the way to the goal can be unpredictable. "Coasting" is about playing without a constant focus on improvements and missing the fun of discovering new challenges. "Coasting" is about a meadow: patchy, varied and dynamic. "Coasting" is about a vignette: a vignette might be a plateau or a cave. "Coasting" is about "yes, but" and "yes, but not" There are no achievements or leaderboards, there are no frames, no instant progress, no time pressure, no game speed. It's all about the shape of the meadow and the courage to take the risk for the next challenge. coasting The town is a town where is possible to travel in any direction, there are no constraints, each corner has a new challenge. coasters might never find their way out. All the puzzle are part of the journey. There are no time limits, or a goal to strive for, just day and night. You are free to investigate a slow meadow or to take a short cut. yes, but not: There are four shortcuts. that work for any meadow, and none of them do not have any influence on the game dynamics. Every challenges and every meadow

What's new in The Little Crane That Could:

": (1) This story was told at the sight of the left little toe is missing. The crane was dead and the foot was sticking out. Legend says that the foot was cut off by a rival crane because they liked the same women. The rival crane tried to kill the first one by tying a cow bull rope around the body. The crane's friends beat him up when they discovered he was killed and the toe was cut off, but they had the rope untied. (2) This story was told at the sight of the left hand, up the arm, out of the shoulder, falls off of a crane. The crane was dead and his hand was hanging by a thread. The crane's girlfriend said, "Oh, my God! If that hand falls off I will never talk to you again!" (3) This story was told at the sight of the spine of a crane. The crane was dead. A woman comes up to the crane and says, "Hey, crane! How you doing? I'm glad you're alive! Do you think you could bring her back alive from wherever she is?" So the crane digs his finger in the mud and pulls out a diamond and throws it to the woman. She runs away with the diamond and never talks to him again. (4) This story was told at the sight of the eyes of a crane. The crane was dead and floating down a river. A man comes up to the crane and says, "Hey, crane! How you doing?" The crane looks down and says, "I'm dead, I'm dead, I'm dead!" The man says, "Oh, well I just wanted to say hello. Goodbye." And he walks away. (5) This story was told at the sight of the eyes of a crane. The crane was dead and floating down a river. A woman comes up to the crane and says, "Hey, crane! I need you to pull me to where I belong." The crane digs his finger in the mud and pulls out a dandelion puff and throws it to the woman. She runs away with the dandelion puff and never talks to him again. (6) This story was told at the sight of the breasts of a crane. The crane was dead and floating down a river. A man came up to the crane and said, "Hey, crane! How you doing?" The crane looks down and says, "I'm dead, I'm
