In United States v. Schooner Peggy, 5 U.S. (1 Cranch) 103, 110, 2 L.Ed. 49 (1801), the Supreme Court stated: "It is the established practice of the Court, whenever it deems the ends of justice require, to reverse the decision below, without remanding the cause for a new trial." Moreover, the court is convinced that under these circumstances, the unexplained denial of the motion to amend, in and of itself, does not amount to a denial of a constitutional right which would require this court to take a different route in reaching its conclusion. Consequently, the error could be harmless and this court may decide the merits of the motion. Therefore, the court will examine
