“Even the most important aspects of the game are taken into account; like the way a defender turns and rotates to intercept a high-flying through ball, or the ferocity of a tackle and the speed of an attack in the final third,” said FIFA Lead Producer Aleksander Holiga. “FIFA 22 also features physics-based melee violence, ball control challenges, and players, like Ronaldo, who can control the ball with just the right touch and an elegant touch.” Additional new features, improvements, and enhancements include: Pace Creator – Changing pace allows you to adapt to and over opponents. Select pace to adapt to the opposition quickly or to take advantage of space and freedom. Defender Spin Assists – With the context of the attack in mind, defenders now create space for attacking players, create saves or simply fouls. Defenders can also provide the correct type of assist on any pass. Highlights – Players can now perform more of the exaggerated body movements, like bending their elbows or flicking the ball with their fingers, to add more detail and emotion to their games. Highlights feature has been extended, allowing players to perform more complex and impressive head, ankle and elbow touches. Passing – Improve your movement and passing in more ways through the context of the attack, similar to the new Pace Creator functionality. Players have more control over the direction of a pass and how they make their pass so that defenders face them at the right time. Players can also now choose their more suitable throw. Throws – Players are given access to more throws in both FIFA and real life. Players are given the ability to throw based on situational information, the opposition and their specific attributes. Ball Mastery – Take your attributes to the next level with Ball Mastery. Using the context of the attack to your advantage, you can perform tricks on the ball that you couldn’t before. You can now kick a defender to produce a throw when the ball is over a defender’s head. Match Day – Players now have access to the ability to get their player into form and boost their attributes by playing matchday. Players will perform better with the right matchday stats. All of a sudden he moved, and started hurling his dagger with fury at everyone. He stabbed all the people who had been at the football party, and he continued to stab the people who had not been there, so that the hall of mirrors became the graveyard of the houris. They saw the murderer moving like an animated corpse with his dagger in the air, slashing at the people who did not exist. They stood like statues. "Perhaps if we moved the furniture," said one of the two women, "we might be able to get the murderer to look at us." It was a good idea. They moved the chairs, tables, and the piano, and put cushions on the chairs and on the table, then they lay down on them in various positions. But the murderer kept going, he stabbed several people who did not exist. "If we do nothing, the murderer will kill all the people who do exist," said the other woman. Then the murderer started stabbing at the rock of ages. And then he looked at the women, and they saw that he was an ordinary man. "You can't help it," he said. "They all look like you when you lie down." "It's not our fault!" cried the women. "The houris have cast spells on us." They did not know how it happened, but all the world was once again the graveyard of the houris. There was a dead silence. The murderer left the room, but they could hear him going away. "Perhaps the murderer has left," said the first woman. But the other thought not. "Oh, we're doomed." Then they saw the murderer was coming back. "That's all right," said the murderer. "I've changed. They'll be okay"
