Tell us about it! I know some will say there are many factors to consider (weight, condition of the wood, etc.), but I'm looking for real experience. I have looked at a lot of surfboards and am now "purchasing" a new board. I will need to store it for a few months, and it just may be for a year. I will be hanging it on a wall, but the wall could be a closet or in my garage, and I don't know how it will react. If you have a pic I'd love to see it! I have surfed my home board 6 months a year for over 8 years with no problems. The only thing I did for storage was cover a drain pipe with pipe tape and tape the plastic perimeter as best I could. It's not a very good surfer board but has been ridden harder than any other in my house and has always been stored the same way, covered so rain doesn't seep in and be exposed to rot. You could just place it on a wall somewhere like the garage and keep it out of the rain for years. Either that or go to your local surf shop everything is displayed properly. But when I add that it seems that it is not rendered at all. A: Okay, so the issue is that your inner div's are all sharing the same key, so when the component renders, all these divs are all being keyed to the same value. Change the key to something that will differ for each div, and it should fix it. José Luis Mínguez José Luis Mínguez Cordero (born 22 March 1980 in Mérida) is a Spanish footballer.
