Im trying to change value in code behind, im using textbox.text= textbox.text-1. This is code. int i; i = textbox.text; textbox.text = i - 1; A: Looks correct, you can test it out by temporarily removing the Text="whatever textbox.text is". If you use Visual Studio, try hitting Control + F5 to debug your app (runs without a browser) to see whether it has already been updated. Any problems with your code could also cause the problem. Analyses of typical soils from the British Isles, covering arable, pasture, wasteland and forest soils in addition to river and lake sediments, and sludges from industrial works. Close attention is paid to the effects of soil formation, reclamation and conservation on the character of these samples. The aim is to study the use of trace elements in the analysis and prediction of environmental behaviour. To this end the results of metal analyses from both in-house and in-use samples are presented along with data which describes the range of typical concentrations found for each element, and estimates of the analytical uncertainties. The main sources of uncertainty include (1) heterogeneity of sample: the number of soil types which is analysed and the range of conditions which covers each soil type affects the results, (2) reagent blanks which will not necessarily provide exactly the same matrix as the sample: » (3) repeat analyses of the same sample: » (4) extractions of the same sample: » (5) dilution: » (6) hydrothermal alteration: » (7) microbial contamination: » (8) leachate losses: 6d1f23a050
