Solo Universo Amazon de Betas. Description: This game offers multiplayer campaigns. 14 Apr 2017Downloading a whole system is not easy nor is it necessary. Some people do it for fun, others because they receive great gains. 2009 Sale.Q: Grails Spring-Security integration I am new to Grails and I wanted to integrate Spring Security with my Grails application. After reading a few tutorials, I tried to create a simple grails application that could be integrated with Spring Security and got that working. I have a simple controller action defined as follows: def index() { // username and password come from the parameters // these are the users from my db. springSecurityService // is an instance of a service I made that is injected with the user details // via a constructor in my Service class SpringSecurityService.withLock(springSecurityService).someMethod() } Grails version: 3.0.4 Spring Security: 3.2.6 When I start the application, I get the following error: Could not find matching constructor for: org.grails.springsecurity.domain.Account.groovy.SpringSecurityService. Use PropertiesBuilder.@entry or Properties.@entry instead. Is there a solution to this problem? A: Grails Security version 2.0+, uses the new UserRole and PermissionDomain classes. For example in SecurityConfig.groovy you could define your own springSecurityService by simply defining your own UserRole and Permission: class MySecurityService{ def springSecurityService static constraints = { springSecurityService(validator: { val, userRole, permission -> val.save(failOnError: true) return!permission.codename.in('HIBERNATE_LOCK', 'READ_UNLOCK_DATA', 'CREATE_TASK', 'UPDATE_TASK', 'DEL_TASK', 'ASSIGN_TASK_POINTS', 'DEL_PERMISSION', 'ADD_PERMISSION', 'COPY_PERMISSION', 'CHANGE_6d1f23a050
