Technical Field The present disclosure relates to mounting systems for use with electronic devices, and, particularly, to a mounting apparatus for removably mounting and electrically connecting an electronic device to a display assembly. 2. Description of Related Art Referring to FIG. 4, a typical mounting apparatus includes a casing 91, a display panel 92 pivotally connected to the casing 91, and a cord 93. The casing 91 has a pivot portion 911 rotatably engaging the display panel 92, and at least one locking portion 921 for securing the display panel 92 to the casing 91. The cord 93 is a power cord for electrically connecting the casing 91 to an external power source. In assembly, the display panel 92 is fixed to the casing 91 by a force pressing the locking portion 921, and the cord 93 then passes through and connects with a connector disposed on the casing 91. The assembly is easy to disassemble due to the locking portion 921. However, when the assembly of the display panel 92 and the casing 91 is completed, the cord 93 is cut off, and the casing 91 can not be used to electrically connect the display panel 92 to the external power source, thereby causing inconvenience for users. Therefore, there is room for improvement within the art.Bacterial resistance is the leading cause of failure in therapy. The rise of drug-resistant pathogens in hospitals has, in many cases, outpaced the development
