A US military and scientific team sets off to explore an uncharted remote island, unaware of the giant surprise that awaits them. The film is shot in the spirit of 'Independence Day', only the action is transferred to space, apart from a few scenes on the ground. The director did not come up with anything original, but he did not spoil it either, which is already good. Special effects are quite consistent with the level of modern cinema. The acting also did not let us down, as did the computer graphics. Conclusion: the film is worth watching when there is nothing else to do, but I would not pay much attention to it. 6 of 10
