the game's official site currently has nothing in terms of tutorials, however, the game itself is a very intuitive experience. the only thing you need to do in order to play is to click and drag the portal to the desired location. the game will then automatically move the portal to the desired location. as mentioned before, the first season of the portal franchise has nothing to do with the forge of gods. the forge of gods dlc is a downloadable content that will be released on june 28th and will consist of a new three-chapter story. the forge of gods will be released for free and is not included in the season pass. additionally, the game will feature a voice acting option; now, you can choose between a male or a female voice actor for your character. and finally, there will be a unique hud that will be used in the game, which will look like this: treyarch, the makers of the black ops installments, had likewise made a decision to remove from the game 24 hours before launch. the whole setting of data gathering tools was deferred to the beta dispatch so the programmers could work out how to make it work. numerous players were dissatisfied with the change, despite the fact that the beta dispatch gave them the opportunity to evaluate the security tools. the pre-dispatch data gathering tools were put back into the game a few days before the dispatch to beta dispatch. not all of the strategies we use are covered by the free trial. in the event that you wish to enhance your abilities as a player, you can pay us to make this happen. while we have a steady stream of game-changing new abilities being added, we likewise have some old abilities that you can request that can be very valuable. for example, we have abilities like the "betrayor", a weapon that can help you get rid of your current weapon. we have all sorts of abilities that can help you get the upper hand in your matches, and if you want more customizability than what's included in the free trial, we can make that happen too.
