KEYMACRO is a very simple and easy to use keylogger application that can work in three modes: - Auto - Manual - Time KEYMACRO uses port 17 thus works only in Windows OS. When you select the Auto mode, KEYMACRO will automatically start recording your every keystroke. Every keystroke is sent to the logger window. This window will display all the data you have gathered and can be used by you to analyze the amount of time each key takes to be pressed. When you select the Manual mode, KEYMACRO starts recording your every keystroke. All the information is also collected in the logger window but now it can be used to see the time a key was pressed and to analyze the speed of pressing a specific key. When you select the Time mode, KEYMACRO will start recording your every keystroke and after that it will show the amount of time that key was pressed. The major advantage of KEYMACRO is that it is a very simple to use application. It is just one click for the auto mode, and the manual mode and the time mode are a bit more complicated but it still does not require any additional setup. You don't have to use any third-party software for this. When you press the "Start" button, it will start recording your keystrokes. KEYMACRO will stop recording when you release the "Stop" button or when you quit the application. When you click the "Clear log" button, it will delete all the recorded data. When you press the "File menu" button, it will open the "Log settings" window. You can enter the path where you want to store the recorded files. In this window you can also set up the other options for the logged keys. These options are very simple to use and it is very easy to understand that how to use them. When you press the "Language Settings" button, it will open the "Language Settings" window. Here you can change the current language for KEYMACRO.
