Identification of differentially expressed genes involved in water and NaCl stress responses in salt-tolerant rice genotypes using transcriptomics. The aim of this study was to identify genes expressed in response to water and NaCl in two salt-tolerant rice genotypes using transcriptome analysis. Water- and NaCl-induced differential gene expression was identified using the rice full-length cDNA microarray (RFM) containing 7617 full-length cDNA fragments. Two libraries were constructed from each sample to determine and compare the gene expression profile in response to different stress conditions. More than two-fold differential expression (P package com.in28minutes.example.springboot.web.multipart.springboot_hello; import org.springframework.boot.SpringApplication; import org.springframework.boot.autoconfigure.SpringBootApplication; import org.springframework.web.bind.annotation.GetMapping;
